PxWeb and SmartDasher

Personal note

In the project, I present two options for PxWeb's visualization system. In an ideal scenario with unlimited time and resources, option 1 is the best choice.

It is worth considering, however, that option 1 would require significant interaction with PxWeb's developers, and its implementation is contingent upon their approval. While I have the necessary know-how to undertake this task, I must acknowledge that it demands full-time dedication, which I am currently unable to provide.

The second option is considerably easier to implement, and I have the required expertise and time to execute it. Despite the limitations I mention in the project, I would vouch for option 2 as a viable and efficient solution.

In case you choose option 1, I can contribute by providing a more detailed plan, and by assisting in a search for the necessary human resources.
